Our First Early Intervention (EI) program is an integrated developmental service, offering both evaluation and therapeutic services to children from birth to three years of age who have developmental concerns due to biological, medical, or environmental factors. EI is a family centered program in which parents and caregivers actively participate.

SERVICE MODEL:
Services are provided in everyday natural settings, including your home, child care center, the home of a family member or childcare provider, in small integrated groups at our center, and in a range of other community settings. This team-based, collaborative model allows the child, family, caregivers, and EI professionals to work together to create increased opportunities for learning. A variety of services, including parent support, educational services, and resource referrals are also provided.

In addition to the family, the team may include developmental specialists, physical/occupational/speech therapists, social workers, dieticians, nurses, and pediatricians. We also work in collaboration with community resources such as center-based day care, family day care, family network services, school services, Head Start, and private therapy services in the area. Service plans are individualized and flexible in order to meet the changing needs of the child and family.
